From the Organ Bench

Or, this Sunday, from the piano bench! The Closing Voluntary this Sunday, the day before the celebration of the birthday of Martin Luther King, is an arrangement of the African-American Spiritual, "Go Down, Moses," often referred to as "an American Negro spiritual." It describes events in the Old Testament, specifically that found in Exodus 8:1: "And the LORD spake unto Moses, 'Go unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go, that they may serve me'", that passage in which God commands Moses to demand the release of the Israelites from bondage in Egypt. In the song, "Israel" is said to represent the African-American slaves while "Egypt" and "Pharaoh" represent the slave master. Although long considered a spiritual, the earliest recorded use of the song was as a rallying anthem for the Contrabands (the term commonly used in the United States military during the American Civil War to describe a new status for certain escaped slaves or those who affiliated with Union forces) at Fort Monroe sometime before July 1862. Some early authorities presumed it was composed by the Contrabands. It was later arranged and published as sheet music. This piano arrangement is by award-winning pianist, composer, arranger, and conductor Mark Hayes. Hayes received a Bachelor of Music degree in Piano Performance from Baylor University in 1975. He has over 1,000 published works for solo voice, solo piano, orchestra, jazz combo, instrumental ensembles, and vocal choirs. His "Go Down, Moses," like many of his piano arrangements, employs elements of jazz in both the harmonies and rhythms.

EVENTS & OPPORTUNITIES TO SERVE

Central Women! It's that time of the year again-our annual retreat weekend. We will gather at the Calvin Center on Friday, March 2, at 5:00 p.m. Our retreat will conclude on Sunday, March 4 at noon.

This year our leader is Beth Johnson. Beth will lead us in exploring The Household of God: Sex, Celibacy, and Siblings. We will examine the multiple ways early Christians talk about families and family values, the ways they use kinship language to talk about God and themselves, and how these texts contribute to contemporary debates about families and family values.

We have secured lodging for the same prices as last year.

Register now by clicking this link. If you have not set up your account within MyCPC, registering for this event is the perfect time to do so; just click here. Starting this Sunday, you may also register in Tull Hall before and after worship.

Lenten Small Groups

Have you ever found yourself amid Lent, a significant season in the worship life of the Church, and wished you had some help cutting through the noise of life so that you could more closely attend - to scriptures, to intuitions, to questions, to the voices of others, or to your own voice? Do you wish you had an opportunity to get to know a group of people at Central on a deeper level?

If so, here is some really good news!

Lenten Small Groups will be forming in each of Central's parishes to share a purposeful, informal timeout each week during Lent (February 11 - March 18). These gatherings of 8-10 will focus on the previous Sunday's sermon and lectionary texts in sharing responses to three questions:

- What did you hear?
- What do you wonder?
- What difference does it make?

Ready for some help with Lent? Watch the newsletter for more details. Sign ups will begin on January 7 in Tull Hall.

When a Snack Matters

Throughout downtown Atlanta, many places offer daily meals to those experiencing homelessness. Central OAC is not one of those places, but we do offer snacks to our guests-but not to anyone who simply asks.

Why not? At the OAC, we believe that people who are hanging out in our lobby and not receiving services have ample opportunity to get to one of the many soup kitchens. However, guests who come to us for services might have to miss a meal in order to get the help they need from us. We don't want our guests to go hungry because they were waiting to apply for their birth certificate or getting assessed for the Main Frame Job Readiness program. So, we offer snacks to these individuals (and their kids, too!).

In order for these guests to receive the nourishment they might need, we'd like your help! A great way to contribute to our work is to provide healthy snacks like granola bars, peanut butter or cheese crackers, packs of peanuts, small cans of fruit or apple sauce, etc. If you're interested in donating snacks, please leave them in the large bins at Central or in the church office marked "Central OAC." You may also visit our "Wish List" on our website and order them online to be shipped directly to the OAC. The link is:

<http://centraloac.org/get-involved/wish-list/>

We are grateful for your contributions that will help our guests stay strong and healthy as they work to overcome homelessness!

Winter Studies Program Begins Sunday January 7th Please note program changes on Jan. 7th and 14th

Program title: Recommitting to Community

Program sub-title: Revitalization of Atlanta communities, and what that can mean for Central Presbyterian Church

Program abstract:

Community revitalization is evident in multiple parts of the Atlanta area, with Beltline-fueled development being but one example. Recent announcements and activities indicate that the community revitalization wave will soon reach Atlanta city-center areas that are practically next door to Central Presbyterian Church. The 2018 Winter Studies program is focused on commitment to community - on engaging to help ensure the presence of actual communities of people in the city, as opposed to just redevelopment in a commercial sense. We will hear about revitalization of Atlanta communities from experts in the public and private sector, how the arts can be a vital part of building and enriching real communities, and what all this can mean for Central Presbyterian Church.

Program schedule (all sessions will be from 9:45 - 10:45 AM in the Oglesby atrium):

- Sunday, January 7 - How the arts can enrich community, and how Central can help - Jeff Watkins, Artistic Director of Atlanta's Shakespeare Tavern Playhouse, will lead a discussion on how the arts can enrich community, how some of Central's spaces could help in-town artists and arts groups thrive, and how art can help tell Central's story to visitors.
- Sunday, January 14 - A vision for a master plan for Atlanta's city center - Audrey Leous, Project Manager, Planning and Urban Design with Central Atlanta Progress, will discuss CAP's "master plan" vision for Atlanta's city center.
- Sunday, January 21 - Community revitalization in Atlanta: the view from City Hall - Tim Keane, Commissioner, Department of City Planning at the City of Atlanta, will provide the perspective from City Hall on Atlanta community revitalization.

- Sunday, January 28 - Central issues for our changing region - urbanization, displacement, and the suburbanization of poverty - Central member Ryan Gravel will put his vision for the Atlanta Beltline in the context of regional dynamics that are reshaping where and how we live. He will cover an array of challenges from housing affordability to transportation technology and discuss ways Central can advocate for an inclusive and equitable future for all Atlantans.
